POLITICS DAY BY DAY

Legal Profession for Taft.

As showing the presidential preferences of jurists and lawyers, the Taft bureau gave out last night the result of a poll taken at the annual shad bake of the District Bar Association yesterday.

"Included in the persons voting," says the accompanying statement, "were members of the Supreme Court of the United States, of the Court of Appeals of the District of Columbia, of the Court of Claims of the United States and of all the local courts."

The professional poll showed 132 votes cast for republican candidates, as follows: President William H. Taft, 110; Theodore Roosevelt, 18; Charles E. Hughes, 4.

"President Taft won, therefore, by a vote of more than 6 to 1 over Mr. Roosevelt," adds the Taft statement.

Clark Ahead Among Lawyers.

In the presidential preference poll taken at the annual shad bake of the District Bar Association yesterday, as announced by those in charge of the voting, democrats expressed preference, as follows: Clark, 41; Harmon, 29; Wilson, 17; Underwood, 15; Bryan, 3; Baldwin, 1; Marshall, 1. John B. Larnier and S. N. Hayden served as tellers in the "election."

Queries Fired At the Colonel.

The Taft headquarters also put the following questions to Col. Roosevelt, for him to answer during the Ohio campaign the coming week.

"If renominated and re-elected President, will Theodore Roosevelt: 1. Withdraw the suit of the government against the steel trust? 2. Will he withdraw the suit against the harvesters' trust? 3. Will he bring any more suits against any trust for violating the Sherman anti-trust law?"

Statue Speaks Out

Pomp on Capitol Hill Amazes Thomas Jefferson.

NOT LIKE OLDEN DAYS

Says Simplicity for Which He Stood Seems Lacking.

CONSENTS TO INTERVIEW

Statesman in Marble Discusses Plan to Rename House Building for Him.

Upon the ordinarily immobile face of the statue of Thomas Jefferson in statutory hall at the Capitol there is a quizzical look these days. The guides who are conducting huge parties of very pretty girls from the various districts and manufacturing centers through the halls of the national legislature have noted this change in the great Virginian's expression and have wondered; but they have said nothing about it. They are averse to making remarks about the statues, inasmuch as a peevish newspaper reporter overheard one of them say, once that Daniel Webster's marble trousers were ripped, and the ensuing line of humorous news on the subject ensued. Capt. McGraw of the Capitol police force in endless discussion.

Reason for Expression.

The reason for Thomas Jefferson's quizzical expression lies in the fact that Representative Humphrey of Mississippi is endeavoring to change the name of the House office building to Jefferson hall. Thomas Jefferson caught a glimpse of the joint resolution proposing the change as Joel Grayson carried a batch of them into the document which is a little nook just off statutory hall. They say that Jefferson actually leaned over to read the papers and he got a little floor in consequence. That afternoon a Star reporter asked Thomas Jefferson's statue what he thought of the proposition.

"Of course," the statue replied, "you will excuse the look of mine, it's a habit that sculptors have with their work. I can't laugh without breaking to work. Of course I would not laugh at Representative Humphrey's proposition, as it pays me an honor that I would fain not accept if I had my way."

Forced to Speculate.

"I wonder how these statesmen who sit upon the west side of the lower house" (he meant the republicans) "would accept this proposition? I gather from the remarks of those who stand in front of me daily that there is a powerful party now in existence under the name of democrats, and that they look up to me as the founder of a great democracy. That was true. I remember before I went to France—when was it—1797? Anyhow, before I went over there I told George Washington that there would be a danger that the republic would become too luxurious unless the principles of democracy were instilled into the roots of the government. I used to write much on this subject. You remember I was a member of the lower house in the Continental Congress, and I believe I was one of the first to 'extend my remarks in the Record.' What a task I set by that practice!"

Simplicity? Indeed! Hum!

"But about this House office building? Is it not a luxurious place? I understand that in the rooms of the committee on the judiciary there is a plush carpet that would have made the court of France jealous. I heard a girl saying yesterday, 'My dear, did you ever see such beautiful chandeliers as they have in the democratic caucus room? They are simply gorgeous! Chandeliers! gorgeous! And to think I was the great-grandfather of a democratic party that had a simplicity plank in its platform. I don't know so much about the change of name to Jefferson hall. I got a peep of Johnny Fitzgerald's sign up in Capitol Hill in a fifty-horsepower automobile one day last week, and he's chairman of this great simplicity plank. Why, in my day we used to ride to Congress on a hundred-dollar horse, and carry a bottle of good strong Jamaica spirits in a saddle horn."

New Fangled Features.

"I am too, too, that they have so many of these new-fangled elevators in the House office building that a good democrat hardly gets a chance to walk upstairs once in a session of Congress. Is that true? I thought so. Dear me. We are falling on soft days indeed. And let me ask you also, is it true they have burrowed under the streets to make a subterranean passage from the Capitol to the building which they propose to name for me? Is it possible? I never would have dreamed it. How George Washington would have laughed! I always imagined he leaned a little toward splendor. I never could stand that gold-headed cane of his. I told him once it reminded me of Sir Noel de Joya, the great dandy of France in King Louis's day. He said, 'No, it is a cane of gold. He nearly inhaled his entire snuff box in his rage.'"

Horse Good Enough for Him.

"How about this payment of 50 cents a mile for traveling expenses of representatives? Do they actually do that? I traveled

Harmon To Tour Ohio.

The Harmon national headquarters announced last night that Gov. Harmon will begin a campaign tour of Ohio tomorrow night, making his first speech at Wooster, Wayne county. Senator Alden B. Pomeroy will also go to Ohio this week, and will address a mass meeting at Mansfield Friday night. Charles A. Cotterill, chief publicity director at the Harmon national headquarters, will accompany Gov. Harmon on the latter's tour of the state. He left for Columbus last night.

La Follette Among the Buckeyes.

Senator La Follette will begin his ante-primary campaign in Ohio May 17, according to a statement made at his headquarters. His itinerary in the state has not been completed.

Aspires to Governorship.

John Barnes, associate justice of the Wisconsin supreme court, will be gubernatorial candidate on the Wisconsin state ticket next fall if plans do not miscarry. Democratic leaders announce that Judge Barnes will make the run provided he is unopposed at the primaries.

Prior to supreme court bench, Mr. Barnes was appointed to the railway rate commission by Gov. La Follette.

Minnesota County for Roosevelt.

With but thirty-two delegates not reported of a total of 610, revised returns today for the Hennepin county, Minnesota presidential primary, held last night, show: Roosevelt, 382 delegates; Taft, 110; La Follette, 61; "fusion," 56. In several precincts the names of some delegates appeared upon both the La Follette and Roosevelt tickets. These have been listed as "fusion."

Ed from Albemarle county, Va., all the way.

Philadelphians, who today are on horseback, and had I asked for a shilling a mile I would have been put in the stocks. Alexander Hamilton might have done it, but not me. I stood for simplicity.

"They tell me, too, that they have mangled desks by the hundreds in the House office building and that they have arrangements for talking to men at a half-mile distance? Fairy tales come true, and Salem witch hunt all over again. It worries my poor stone brain to think of it. Even James Courts has an electric pencil sharpener, yet look at the tools with which I worked on the Declaration of Independence."

Entirely Too Much.

At that moment a very grand and pompous colored messenger walked by. "Who is that?" asked Thomas Jefferson's statue.

"He is employed to sit out in front of a certain democratic committee room and brush off the hats of the democratic members as they pass in, and then again as they pass out," said the Star reporter.

"Great Oscar Underwood!" exclaimed the statue, and then refused to say another word about changing the name of the House office building to Jefferson hall.

ONLY NINE PASS.

Out of fifty-nine candidates recently examined for appointment as acting dental surgeons in the army nine were successful. Most of the candidates failed to meet the physical requirements. Following is a list of those who passed: Mortimer Sanderson of Philadelphia, Albert R. White of Delaware, Ohio; Charles B. Seely of Montgomery, Pa.; Arthur T. Knicker of Columbus, Ohio; John W. Knicker of Columbus, Ohio; Arthur P. Matthews of Pueblo, Colo.; William A. Squires of Grand Junction, Colo.; Frank C. Cady of Fredonia, Kan.; John H. Snapp of Columbus, Ohio.

HELD AS SLAYERS OF SEER.

Suffolk Woman and Son-in-Law Declared They Are Innocent.

SUFFOLK, Va., May 11.—Locked up in Southampton county jail, held without bail for the killing of Miss Beckie Story, an aged fortune teller, Mrs. Mary Vick and her son-in-law, John Row, today protested vigorously against their arrest. ### Pulp Company Plans Improvements.

SPECIAL DISPATCH TO THE STAR.
LUKE, Md., May 11.—The West Virginia Pulp and Paper Company has purchased a large tract of timber land along Stony creek, on the line of the Western Maryland railroad, and it is understood that the company will build a dam to construct a fifty-thousand-dollar dam to impound a large reserve supply of water for power.

Luzons Win By 9 to 8.

In a game that it took eleven innings to decide the winner, the Luzons of the Monumental League defeated the Tanglewood club by the close score of 9 to 8. The game afforded many brilliant plays and the holding of Carl Brooks of the losers was a highlight.
